

PREPARING TO BUILD A NEW STOREROOM

H. S. Griswold Putting An Old Landmark Out of Business.

H. S. Griswold who owns the two story brick structure at 25-27 East Adams street and the adjoining lot to the east, is engaged in tearing down the little brick building on the latter property. He proposes to erect in its stead a good brick, one story storeroom of the same height as the Martin block to the east. A stairway will be made to the second floor of his present storeroom, which is now accessible only by a back stairway. This will make six suites of good rooms for rent over his present store and add one storeroom to Adams street, completing its solidity on both sides, between Central avenue and First street.

The little building now being torn down stood back from the sidewalk some distance and had ceased to be of value for any desirable purpose in that location. It is entitled to honorable mention, however, as the passing of a historic landmark. It is in fact the last of the early day structures on that entire block, surrounded by Washington, Adams and First streets, and Central avenue, except the Jones property on the corner of Center and Washington, which has been remodeled so extensively.

A LIBERAL OFFER

We Guarantee to Relieve Dyspepsia. If We Fail the Medicine Costs Nothing.

To unquestionably prove to the people that indigestion and dyspepsia can be permanently relieved and that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will bring about this result, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give satisfaction to any one using it. The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well-known properties of Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents.

Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is carefully prepared so as to develop its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid. Without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The Carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food. This combination of these ingredients makes a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so certain of this that we urge you to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on our own personal guarantee. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store, The Owl Drug Co., Andrew H. Miller, Mgr., First Ave. and Adams St., and Laird & Dines, Tempe.

that no resident of the 90's or earlier would recognize it. There is nothing of particular public interest recalled with which the little structure's history deals, but it was one of the comfortable little, close-in residences of two or three rooms, regarded as quite palatial in the days when James Stewart, superintendent of the stage line that supplied Phoenix, made it his home. It has nearly always been used since then as rooms for lodging and probably a hundred different people have called it home at one time or another.

On brief occasions it has been used for little shops of one kind or another and once it rose to the distinction of a real public establishment, when a few years ago, in the days of wide open gambling, it was a well patronized "policy" shop.

Finances and Markets

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Limited demand for stocks for present range of prices was shown clearly in today's trading. The market developed a downward tendency sufficient to indicate for the present the recovery of last week will not be carried further. Disappointingly small buying was placed to various unanswered questions, chief among which is the intention of the government toward the enforcement of the anti-trust law. Selling of St. Paul the first hour seemed to determine the market's course for the remainder of the day. Pressure against this issue was steady and seemed greatly due to selling in London. St. Paul, Amalgamated and United States Steel were the three prominent stocks to end the day with a loss. The weakness of steel was due partly to further reports of small trade reports. New orders placed are slightly below thirty thousand tons daily. Bonds, steady. Total sales, par value, $2,150,000. Governments unchanged.

REORGANIZATION OF PHOENIX NEST, O. O.

New Officers Elected Last Night—Plans for a Reawakening of Interest.

With the idea of instilling new interest into the work of the order by securing officers representing more varied lines of activity, the officers of Phoenix nest, No. 1288, Order of Owls, last night tendered their resignations and a new set of officers was elected, with the exception of the secretary, James G. Simpson, and the treasurer, T. M. Elder. In view of the fact that these officials were bonded and it was not desirable to secure new bonds for the remaining portion of the year previous to the next election, their resignations were not accepted.

The new officers elected are: Frank De Souza, president, succeeding B. E. Marks; A. Wetzel, vice president; W. P. Doherty, past president; Walter R. Van Tyne, invocator; James Lowrey, warden; George McClarty, captain of the drill team.

It was also decided to move back into the new Knights of Pythias hall on November 1st, that being the next in which the lodge was born and in which it occupied until the recent fire in that building.

LITTLE NEMO WAS IN TOWN

Also He Spoke His Little Piece To a Crowd Which Gathered Last Night at the City Hall Plaza.

It was an awful task which Mulford Winsor, the "Little Nemo" of Yuma county, set himself yesterday evening when, before an indifferently sized crowd on the city hall plaza, he attempted to deliver a speech in support of his candidacy for the democratic nomination for congress.

It was the Tucson Citizen which first gave Winsor the name of "Little Nemo." And whether this small statesman ever before really delivered the name or not he made a strong bid for it last night; for the visions he saw were wonderful. Really and truly they were.

Winsor didn't have the privilege of addressing a large crowd. If more people had been present he might have done better, but as it was the speech can hardly be called a brilliant success. Once an over enthusiastic citizen attempted a hand clap; but as nobody followed his lead he desisted. Again, on one occasion the meager audience tried a cheer. If one had strained his ears the cheer might have been heard half a block away.

The man who said Winsor is a public speaker ought to be ashamed of himself. If the gentleman from Yuma possesses any particular talent of that kind he didn't have it with him last night. True, he used plenty of words; but if there is a single person who heard him can repeat two consecutive sentences of the "speech" he ought to have a medal.

Winsor laid particular stress on the importance of all candidates having supported the constitution. As there is probably not a democratic candidate in the field who did not, for one reason or another support the constitution, it is a little difficult to comprehend just what is implied by that argument. Winsor also warned his hearers against trusting the people who are likely to betray them. In this, also, there was no indication of the speaker's real meaning. Just who is to do the betraying act was not made clear.

The harangue had much to do with the rights of the "pee-pul" and all the other time worn platitudes of populism. There was not a single new thought in the whole dreary round of empty phrases. People who have known little of Winsor, but who have heard him touted by a part of the press as a man of real ability, could hardly fail to be disappointed in his speech. The average soap box orator could discount it hands down; and for real thought most any comic almanac has it backed off the boards.

Winsor doubtless has formed the idea that he is real congressional timber; but if his speech of last night is a fair sample of what he can do, he will have a rather difficult task convincing the people of Arizona that he is fitted for the job to which he aspires.

SOMETHING ABOUT THAT MAN GEO. MAUK

A Brief Expose of His Life and Activities.
There are few young men in Arizona who have been more active and energetic both in their own interest and in the building up of Arizona, than George A. Mauk, candidate for state auditor, subject to the republican primary, October 24. There are few young men in the territory who are better known than Mr. Mauk, but it is violating no confidence to say that even he is not known by everybody, and there is no time more fitting to say a word concerning his career than right now when the voters who are more or less interested in him.

Mr. Mauk was born in California some 25 years ago, or thereabout, coming to Arizona with his parents five years later and having the good judgment to stick through all the trying years of the struggling young territory. The family settled in Tombstone in 1880 when that camp held the record for wildness and wooliness. Eight years later the family moved to Phoenix where young Mauk passed through the local schools and has later acquired a broad education in the college of experience. While yet in his teens Mauk entered the service of the Southern Pacific railway in the Tucson division, learned telegraphy and the duties of a station agent and later the general railroad business. He quit the service of the railroad for a time and engaged in the insurance business, being in the employ of the New York Life for a period of seven years, though a part of this time overlapped some of his other employment, for he was never a lad to have all his eggs in one basket. During this period also he was for a time connected with a building and loan association and incidentally spent some time and money in promoting mines.

Re-entering the service of the railroad company he was soon afterward, or to be more exact in October 1907, appointed agent of the company in Globe. He retained that post until the first of the present year and resigned it to accept the appointment as territorial auditor. During his service as agent in Globe he had the satisfaction of seeing that city grow into the largest freight handling point on the whole Southern Pacific system in Arizona. This was due to the rapid development of the mines in the Globe district, the incoming of hundreds of carloads of machinery, coke, ores, etc., and the outgoing of a vast amount of ores and bullion, together with the general freight of a growing and important town of some ten or fifteen thousand inhabitants, according to the activity of the mines.

Politically Mr. Mauk has always been a republican and has found time to work at it very energetically since reaching the Arizona communities in which he lived, made a wide acquaintance and many strong friendships. These made him a logical candidate for his present office when his predecessor, W. C. Foster, resigned to enter the banking business. He served the territorial republican central committee two years as secretary and during the 24th legislature which convened in 1907, he served as chief clerk of the council or upper house. He is one of the younger men of the territory of strong personality, wide capability and varied attainments, which coupled with good health gives him license to expect many years of useful activity.

As territorial auditor and bank examiner, Mauk has made good at every point. It was hinted in some quarters by the over suspicious that he might have "railroaded" by reason of his previous service with railroad corporations, but the action of the recent session of the territorial board of equalization, of which he is ex-officio chairman, should be ample proof of his loyalty to "the people" first and all the time. He protected their interests in matters where it would have been easy enough for an official of less carefulness and familiarity with the situation to have been easily and even honestly "swayed."

Another incident that inures greatly to his credit and marked him as a competent and far sighted official, one who does things as well as simply "sees" things, was in the organization of the County Assessors' association of Arizona very soon after his induction into his present office. He issued a call that brought the assessors together, resulting in the organization of the association and the adoption of uniform methods of taxation, whereby property of all classes is not only more generally and more completely, but more equitably taxed. These plans are not yet fully worked out, but enough has been done to have a material effect on the tax roll of the present year.
